Summer Advantage USA will bring more than 300 teaching jobs to the State of Indiana this summer. The following teaching positions are available:

Academic Teachers — offer the primary support to ensure the academic and social development of the student scholars

Enrichment Teachers — create and lead a specific enrichment program such as art, music or physical education that augments the academic program

Teacher's Assistants — support the teachers in providing academic and enrichment lessons to the student scholars

Applicants are encouraged to apply by Wednesday, March 31, 2010. To apply for a teaching position and to review job descriptions, please visit the Summer Advantage website at www.summeradvantage.org and click on the Careers tab.

Summer Advantage USA operates on the premise that summer learning provides children with academics plus enrichment, such as the arts, engineering and technology, health and fitness and community service. The organization works to connect children with experienced educators and adult mentors, and engages parents more deeply in the education of their children.

About Summer Advantage USA

Summer Advantage USA is a national non-profit organization providing elementary and middle school students with research-based summer learning programs focused on academic gains. Summer Advantage USA was launched in January 2009 with the support of the Mind Trust and offers summer learning programs encompassing literacy, mathematics, science and extracurricular enrichment. It offers a replicable “locally-owned” model and strives to institutionalize that model by impacting public policy.
